BUILDING OPERATIONS

Will Begin in the Spring and Several Large Houses Go Up.

BIG APARTMENT HOUSE.

Home Capital Only Will Contribute to City's Improvement.

Rumors of prospective improvements, some imaginary and others desired and to be carried out, are rife. After spring opens there is not the shadow of a doubt that many new buildings will be begun and completed before the middle of the year.

We are told that Mr. John P. Prowse has determined on the erection of a number of cottages on his vacant property on South Virginia street, east of his Main street home. They will all be just the size most in demand the year round. This paper has repeatedly called attention to the great need of these kinds of buildings to meet the call of the large annual influx of people coming from the country to take advantage of the opportunities of their children's receiving an education in our schools and colleges. Mr. Prowse will have no trouble in leasing his cottages as fast or even faster than they are completed.

We have also directed the attention of capitalists to the need of large apartment houses. With the steady growth of the city has arisen the absolute necessity of a large apartment house. Men with small families do not want a home in the outskirts of the city. They do not care to be bothered with raising vegetables, for they can be bought cheaper than they can be raised. If they are in business they want to be near it. No one will dispute these statements, for they are well known facts. An apartment building heated by steam, supplied with hot and cold water, lighted by electricity and furnished with modern improvements, the building divided into suits of rooms, where one can be isolated, if he chooses, from fellow occupants, is what is needed beyond a doubt. Rumor has it that one of our citizens, who has the means to erect such a building, and that he has already had drawings made and during the year will have it ready for occupancy. It is to be in the center of the city, and long before it is completed we predict a push of people who will want to "get in on the ground floor," as well as other floors.

We understand that Councilman Lucian Davis is to erect a handsome home on East Seventh street, and that work will begin as soon as the weather permits. The entire building, it is said, is to be of stone.

Mr. Monroe Dalton is said to be another of our citizens who is to put up a handsome residence building. It is not because he has the building fever, though that is his business, but because last December he had an offer for his former home on East Seventh street that he couldn't decline. Our inference from what we have heard is that Mr. Dalton's building will be of pressed brick, with a probable free use of dressed stone.

The latest information we have as to the enlargement of the Christian church is that the proper persons are at work on their own lines to raise the money for the purpose. There need be no apprehension as to the final result of the labors of the gentlemen having the matter in hand. The estimated outlay has been conservatively put at $12,000. The Main entrance will be on Liberty street, as the extension of the building will be carried out to the pavement line. The present building is entirely too small for the membership and enlargement is not only necessary but has been fully determined upon.

The new office building of the Forbes Manufacturing Co. is to be built as soon as weather conditions are favorable. The foundation was put in last fall, and the company has been waiting for spring to open so that they can begin laying brick.

The improvements named are the most extensive with which the year 1907 will open, to say nothing of a probable addition to boarding departments of South Kentucky College and the large number of cottages that are to be put up by different persons in the suburbs. If we have not an encouragement for another year of growth and development we would like to know where there is another place of our size in the State that has. We need only one thing more to make Hopkinsville a model little city of the commonwealth—a street railway. We believe the time is near at hand when electric street cars will be ringing. We can't get along much longer without them. We must have them, and they will come.

There is no prospect of "foreign capital seeking investment in a street railway system here. Some of our people do not want it built by outsiders. Home capital is preferable, of course, but no proposition that has fairness and honesty on its face should be set down on or discouraged.

NIGHT RIDERS INVALDE CADIZ.

Leave Anonymous Notes Threatening to Wreck a Train.

PLACED IN CADIZ DEPOT

No Attention Paid to The Threats, But Cars Run as Usual.

The night riders who have been operating in Trigg county for several weeks have at last invaded Cadiz. In spite of the wordy denials of their existence in the Cadiz paper and in communications sent by the County judge to the Courier-Journal, they have made threats in the county seat itself.

Mr. W. C. White, in many respects the leading citizen of Cadiz, who is President of the Cadiz Railroad, on Wednesday morning found the following letter in the depot at Cadiz:

Mr. W. C. White: We understand that Jesse Vinson is intending to carry his tobacco to Cadiz to ship to Hopkinsville. Now we don't want this done. Don't haul it on your Road. We mean what we say.

"Night-Rider." P. S. We don't care to do you any harm but we must and will protect our wives and children. A hint to the wise had better be sufficient."

The engineer and fireman of the road also received the following epistle, written on the same kind of paper, in the same hand, disguised by the use of well executed letters made in the form of printed letters.

Jake Bingham and Dick Mitchell: Dear Friends—We understand Mr. Jes. Vinson is going to bring his tobacco to Cadiz to-day to ship it to Hopkinsville where he has sold it.

Now we don't want to do you any harm in any way, but this tobacco must not go out from here. If it does the train will never get to Gray and back. We are your friends and don't want to do anything that might injure you, so you had better lose your jobs than to take a chance of losing your lives. Your Friends."

In spite of these ominous threats the Cadiz train pulled out with Mr. Vinson's crop and it was hauled safely to Gracey, turned over to the I. C. and delivered to Tandy & Fairleigh in this city Wednesday. Mr. Vinson was in the city yesterday looking after the sale of this crop.

The Cadiz Record has for some time been saying unkind things about the Kentuckian because it refuses to suppress the unlawful condition of affairs in its county. Now that the facts are no longer a subject of dispute, we hope to see the Record, whose chief contributor is the county judge, array itself on the side of law and order and co-operate with the Kentuckian in its efforts to stop the perpetration of these outrages, that have brought disgrace upon some of the most law-abiding counties in the State.

J. MILLER CLARK, THE GROCER

DIG DEEP FOR DRINK

HOW BROOKLYN IS SOLVING THE WATER PROBLEM.

Millions of Gallons Brought Up from Subterranean Channels by a System of Compressed Air Power.

While New York has been priding itself upon its Croton reservoir and putting millions upon millions in a water system, Brooklyn, just across the river, has been going down into the bowels of old mother earth for her water supply, and has during the past year succeeded in reaching seemingly inexhaustible supplies. Seventy-five per cent. of the present supply of the city is produced from underground sources. It is a revolution that has been worked within a year.

Convinced, by the conclusion of earnest and scientific examinations of the conditions that a great reservoir of water was to be found on Long Island in the second water-bearing gravel stratum underlying the blue clay, at depths ranging from 150 to 1,800 feet, it was demanded that a demonstration be made, the Brooklyn people being present in the effort.

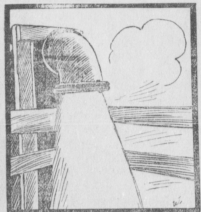

On December 24, 1905, the board of estimate appropriated $60,000 to improve the water station at Jamaica. At this place there has been 21 wells sunk under the inefficient methods of the old authorities. Together they produced 1,500,000 gallons a day, when they worked. They were practically under condemnation when they were put under the air lift system. It was believed that they were in such shape that nothing could be done with them in less than a year 15 have been put under the new system, the water bearing gravel stratum under the blue clay has been reached and daily 4,500,000 gallons is turned into the conduits for use by Brooklyn. When the other six wells are put into the same shape it is estimated that at least 12,000,000 gallons will be the daily production from this station alone.

In view of the fact that barely a year ago the conditions were as set forth above it is astounding that 75 per cent. of the present water supply of Brooklyn is from underground sources; 20 per cent. from unfiltered surface sources, and five per cent. from filtered sources. The present daily consumption averages 125,000,000 gallons daily. It has run as high as 140,000,000 gallons in a single day.

During the year 1906, from underground sources alone, the supply has been increased by 10,000,000 gallons, or 20 per cent. of the entire supply.

In addition to the wells at Jamaica station operated under the air lift system, there are over 20 other wells adding their flow to the city's water supply.

A marked instance of the value of the increased supply from the deep water sources was shown in the experience of the department in midsummer last. The bacteriological examination of the water, frequently made by the department, discovered the existence of the B. coli communis in Bailey's pond. Promptly reported, the department took prompt action. The pond was shut off as a source of supply. And thus nearly 10,000,000 gallons were taken from the supply. A year previously this could not have been done without deprivations to the consumers. As it was, the public knew nothing of it while all the sources of the pond were cleared up and the condition changed.

It is a question whether all the wells should be under the air lift system. It is a fact that the engineers are all willing to admit that the air lift method produces double the quantity of water obtained under other methods, while the danger of clogging at the strainer is much less. But the methods employed are not of so much consequence as the fact that the existence of an insect in the supply is the city's very test, has been demonstrated most conclusively; that its efficient utilization has also been demonstrated and beyond controversy; that the extension of the system within borough lines alone will solve the water problem of Brooklyn.

World's Sunday Schools.

The development of the Sunday school idea means a great deal. The chief secretary of the world's fourth Sunday school convention furnishes in his report the following figures: Total of 260,365 Sunday schools, 2,314, 757 teachers and 21,442,996 scholars in the world; and in the United States, 139,817 schools, 1,419,807 teachers and 11,493,591 scholars. Numbers, but have little more than half as many. The lowest on the list of countries having schools is Greece with four schools, seven teachers and 348 scholars.

ALVARADO OF MEXICO

MAN IMBUED WITH THE SPIRIT OF GIVING TO THE POOR.

Rich Mine Owner Who, Emulating Carnegie, Declares He Will Distribute His Wealth While He Lives.

Don Pedro Alvarado is a generous-hearted mine owner of Mexico, who has resolved that he will die poor, somewhat after the spirit and purpose of Carnegie, of this country. He owns a mine which can produce net profits of $12,000,000 a year, and all this immense income he declares he will give away. In order to attain his purpose he offered not long ago to pay off the national debt of Mexico. But in this attempt to empty his treasury he was thwarted. The Mexican government was so proud that it declined the favor. Don Pedro, however, is not a man to be easily discouraged. He is going to give his money away. In spite of obstacles. And so, after long deliberation, he has announced he would give $10,000,000 to the poor of Mexico, the money to be distributed by the government. Little, if any, is to be given outright to any applicant, but each of those who are found worthy in the eyes of the government will receive a small farm, be stocked with a home or be helped to establish himself in business. Provision has been made to found free schools with the fund, and a small amount will be given to struggling churches. It is estimated that as many as 20,000 persons will be benefited by Don Pedro's generosity.

To the American mind Don Pedro is an enigma. It is not his philanthropy that causes the Yankee to wonder, for the Yankee would, if you had it, but with this difference: I don't try to die out all the silver in it at once. If I did I might spend it all and be a poor man again. At my rate of 200 miners are working; I'll get $200,000 a month as long as I live."

Another strange thing about Don Pedro is that he loves his poor relatives. He keeps his house at Parral filled with them. Anybody who can secure the slightest connection with the wealthy mine owner, either by birth or marriage, is welcome within his gates. And when he cannot spend his income on his people fast enough at home, he chartered a special train, packs them all aboard and starts off on a journey, just where he never knows in advance. Accordingly he always makes arrangements with the railroad company to stop his special train wherever he takes the notice.

Unlike the average American who grows wealthy, Don Pedro does not care for personal attendants. He shaves himself, cuts his own hair, blacks his own shoes, and does a part of his own cooking. After his wife died for a long time dressed his three children himself. Nor is he circumspect in his spending of money as many American capitalists. If he takes a fancy to something he will buy it at a dozen times as much as he needs. A year ago he met an American sewing machine agent, who so interested him in his particular machine that Don Pedro bought 50 of them, and put one in each room in his house. Another great source of enjoyment for this peculiar man is to give work to the poor. If a beggar asks him for alms he will shake his head. "No, but I'll let you work for me and pay you for your labor," he will say. Not long ago, when the grape crop in the region around Parral proved a failure, many of the farmers went to work for Alvarado.

THE ELY CATHEDRAL

WONDERFUL STRUCTURE PASSES EIGHTH CENTURY MILE STONE.

Legends and Stories Which Cluster Around This Historic Building Are Interwoven in English History.

Not many church structures in England can boast as long a life as can Ely cathedral, which has just celebrated the eight hundredth anniversary of its founding and building. At which time, legend states, the second translation of the body of the founder, Etheldreda, the queen Abbess, took place from the convent church.

Many are the legends and stories that cluster around a building like Ely cathedral, which has witnessed the nation's history for more than 12 centuries, and whose influence is seen to this-day in the speech of our country by the word "tawdry." Among the legends connected with the most famous Ely cathedral is that of Brythstan. He in sickness pledged himself to a religious life on recovery, but was thrown into prison on account of his wealth. To him, as the legend goes, after continual prayers to Etheldreda, the saints appear and the prison chains are broken. Queen Matilda, wife of Henry I, wished to retain the iron collar, but this Brythstan hangs on the shrine of Etheldreda when he enters her monastery of the Benedictine order. "This is the chain which once bound me," he said. Hence the adjective was used for personal ornaments, shewy but common, and in corruption of the saint's name—Aetheldreda, Etheldreda, Eldreda, Aldreda, St. Aldred, St. Aldrey.

The glory of Ely cathedral is the Gothic dome and lantern, so aptly styled St. Aldrey's crown. This is that which makes the great minister of the fens so utterly unlike any other church in England, or, indeed, in Christendom, both in its stateliness and the variety of its outline.

The lantern was the result of a catastrophe which became a blessing in disguise. The roof, the constant genius of one man, that greatest of the English cathedral builders of the fourteenth century, Alan de Walsingham, a priest and afterward abbot of the foundation. On February 22, 1322, the old Norman central tower, erected by

Abbot Sison just after the conquest, fell as the monks were returning from the church to their dormitory. Alan is represented in the old records as being at first perplexed and overwhelmed, not knowing which way to turn himself or what to do for the reparation of such a ruin; but, taking courage and putting his whole trust in God, he set his hand to the work, clearing the spot with all possible speed and with much labor and expense. He then measured out eight positions in which the eight stone columns were to stand, supporting the new campanile. These spots he caused to be dug out and examined until he had found the solid rock. Alan's main object was to build up something that should be less likely to fall than the traditional center tower borne up by four arches. Cupolas of the east, as well as towers of the west, were formerly supported by four arches, and so could have no greater span than the four limbs gave. The peculiarity of the Ely octagon is that the central space is far wider than any of the four limbs, which, from other points of view, look so vast, but sink into mere adjuncts to the great central space.

Flats.

Possibly the exact origin of "flat" as applied to an apartment will forever remain in obscurity, says Building Management. In recent years owners of "flat houses" in some cities have rebelled against the term. A short time ago a tenant was threatened with a suit for libel because he persisted in saying that he lived in such-and-such a flat house. The landlord declared that the structure was neither a flat house nor a tenement, but an apartment house. The repeated use of "flat house" as a designation tended to lower the reputation of the place and drove away what would be occupants in some cities the word flat, however, carries quite the opposite significance.

CYPRUS PILGRIMAGE FOR TWO THRONES

HISTORIC ISLAND AN INTERESTING PLACE OF RESORT. CONTENTION WHICH INVOLVES ENGLAND AND GERMANY.

Pilgrimage to the Kykkon Monastery Offers an Unusual Sight for the Tourist—Picture Painted by St. Luke.

Mount Troodos, Cyprus, which is 5,600 feet above the sea, offers to the residents of Egypt a delightfully cool and beautiful resort. The range is covered with pines and firs, the views and scenery are delightful, and a tin hotel and a boarding house in tents offer sufficient accommodation for visitors.

Pilgrims Arriving at Monastery.

The road is uphill nearly the whole way—36 miles—and halts are made to rest and water the team, while the passengers gladly avail themselves of an opportunity to stretch their legs. A change of ponies is made half-way.

The walks are numerous, and many interesting excursions on mules may be made, of which by far the best is the one to Kykkon Monastery, 26 miles away in the heart of the mountains, where the monks put one up for the night and supply one with excellent food and wine. In September the feast of the Virgin Mary attracts over 6,000 peasants from all over the island to make their pilgrimage to the holy picture in the chapel. This is said to have been painted by St. Luke himself, and has the reputation of effecting miraculous cures.

As one approaches the monastery, which stands isolated high up on the side of a big mountain, along all the hill paths can be seen troop after troop of gaily clad country folk, all riding on mules and donkeys, streaming endlessly towards the fair. The steady flow of new arrivals goes on all day, and outside the main gate, where the press is greatest, is the watering place for the animals, a wild tangle of mules and donkeys, with here and there an excited head appearing, the whole controlled by a mild-faced, long-haired young priest.

Only stopping to tether their animals and mark their bivouac, tired and dusty from their, perhaps, many days' journey, the pilgrims go to the chapel to make their round of the holy icons, kissing each picture once, and St. Luke's many times. The galleries of the monastery accommodate over 600 people during the fair, while the remainder camp outside in the open, and it is really a remarkable sight to see the thousands and thousands of little bivouacs, with the animals tethered close by, surrounding the buildings. A dense crowd of people move along the street of booths, haggling and bargaining over their purchases, others sitting in the cafes watching clowns, big-headed, and dancing. From 50 to 60 camels bring up the extra force required for the many animals, and it is distributed by a couple of priests to the peasants for a small sum.

One of the petty quarrels that occasionally arise between relations, and sometimes carry them to the verge of war, is that of the succession to the throne of Hanover-Brunswick, which is now agitating the English and German, and involves directly the friendly relations between the German emperor and his uncle the king of England.

To gain an appreciation of the gravity with which the royal rivals view the dispute, it is necessary to go back to the time of George I., who, when he succeeded to the English throne, was both duke of Brunswick-Luneburg and king of Hanover. At that time there was, of course, no German empire, and the duchy and the kingdom were independent principalities, in which their rulers held large property and revenue rights, frequently referred to as the Guelph treasure. But there was also another side of the duke of Brunswick-Luneburg, which had arisen from a division of the possessions of Ernest the Confessor, duke of Brunswick-Luneburg, between his two sons, the elder whom was the progenitor of the house of Brunswick-Wolfenbutter.

Then it happened that while George III. of England inherited the Guelph possessions, the dukes of Brunswick-Luneburg and the kingdom of Hanover, his sister Augusta married the duke of Brunswick-Wolfenbutter. Her grandson, William duke of Brunswick, died in 1834 without issue. This terminated the house of Brunswick-Wolfenbutter, and left all claims to the title of duke of Brunswick in the house of Brunswick-Luneburg, which is now represented by the duke of Cumberland, cousin of King Edward.

Of course it is well known that King Edward is of the house of Brunswick-Hanover, but neither of the German titles which the Georges held, but in fact he is neither. There are a lot of political complications which have led the German emperor to refuse his assent to the succession urged by his royal uncle, and which give rise to the bitterness of feeling that has grown out of the dispute.

In 1866 war broke out between Prussia and Austria. King George of Hanover, son of that duke of Cumberland, who was son to George III., sided with Austria. Prussia won, and took revenge on George of Hanover by depriving him of his kingdom. After the death of ex-King George his son, the present duke of Cumberland, made claim to the throne of Hanover. Not only was the claim rejected, but the kingdom of Hanover was absorbed by Prussia as a mere province. Thus both titles and revenues were swept away, and all the influence of the English monarch has not been sufficient to secure their restoration to his kinsman.

In the meantime, William, duke of Brunswick, died and the duke of Cumberland, claimant to the throne of Brunswick, became heir to the duchy of Brunswick as well. Here again Prussia intervened. The king of Prussia had become German emperor on the formation of the German empire, and both Prussia (which had absorbed Hanover) and Brunswick, had become German states. In anticipation of the very contingency which now arises, a law had been passed in 1873, the effect of which the legitimate heir to the duchy of Brunswick (who was of course the duke of Cumberland) were prevented from ascending to the ducal throne a regency should be constituted. The duke of Cumberland was prevented from becoming duke of Brunswick on the ground of the disloyalty of his father, King George of Hanover, who had subsequently Prince Albert of Prussia, a nephew of Kaiser Wilhelm I. and cousin of the present kaiser, was made regent of the duchy. In this condition matters remained until the recent death of Prince Albert, when the question of the duke of Cumberland's claims once more became acute.

The Weather.

For Kentucky—Clearing Saturday, with cold wave.

The Court of Appeals upheld the constitutionality of the law making chicken stealing a felony.

The Ohio at Louisville is now falling about a foot a day and the worst of the flood is over.

Fred W. Molkey, of Oregon, and Chas. Curtis, of Kansas, both Republicans, were elected to the Senate this week.

It is said that the dairy barn of W. H. Stegar at Princeton was probably burned by tramps who were sleeping in the barn. It was not connected with other troubles in Caldwell County.

The Senate at last passed the compromise resolution authorizing the investigation of the Brownsville affair without questioning the President's motives. Teddy, as usual, came out on top.

Representative Ollie James has introduced a liquor bill that provides that the federal government shall not issue license for the sale of liquor in prohibition or local option territory.

Sherburn Becker, Milwaukee's "boy mayor," visited Louisville this week and made a speech at a Board of trade banquet. He is only 29 years old.

In a single-handed combat at a Southern Pacific camp eight miles from Montezuma, Sonora, Mexico, Bert Zeesley, an American cowboy, shot and killed six Mexicans. He killed three each in two separate fights and escaped.

Senator Russell A. Alger, of Michigan, died Thursday, of heart trouble. He was a Union General, a Cabinet Minister, Governor of Michigan and United States senator. His successor for the term beginning March 4 has already been elected—William Alden Smith.

A bill to tax bachelors has been introduced in the Indiana House by Representative Oberling, of Lawrenceburg. It provides a tax of $5 on unmarried men between twenty-five and thirty years of age; $7.50 on those between thirty and forty, and $10 for those over forty. There are in Indiana 102,929 unmarried men over twenty-five and it is claimed that this law would produce over a million dollars. All money obtained thus would go to the school fund.

In the Cadiz Record of this week was reproduced an article written by the county judge of Trigg county, Judge G. B. Bingham, which the Record, owned in part by his son-in-law, says has been endorsed as the best account yet written in regard to what the association stands for. Among other things this article contains is this paragraph:

"The excess of virtue manifested by the enemies of the tobacco growers distances hypocrisy. The disposition to magnify every idle word dropped at a crossroads store by a goods box whittler into incendiarism and crime is meanness."

Taking the Courier-Journal to task for publishing reports of threats the same writer adds:

"Where there has not been a single instance of lawlessness, or even a threat, that could be traced to a responsible party, in connection with the association, such publications are libelous and demand reparation in justice to the honor and good name of those so maligned."

With the county judge, whose

Liver and Kidneys

The great alternative and tonic

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Gives these organs vigor and tone for the proper performance of their functions, and cures all their ordinary ailments. Take it.

duty it is to uphold the law, writing such defenses of the men who assert in their threatening notes that they are acting in the interest of the association, it is no wonder that the night riders have over-run Wallonia, Cerulean Springs, Caledonia and even Cadiz itself. We have no disposition to bandy epithets with the Cadiz Record. We have seen the threatening notes that were written in every case where we have reported these outrages. We have dealt only in facts and we believe our efforts to improve conditions in Trigg county have been not without some success. The Record itself has so changed its position that it says of the notes threatening to destroy its railroad and cause the employees to lose their lives, in the shadow of its court house:

"If this was done by a member of the association it was a great mistake, and will do the association no good."

We are glad to know that the Record has at last learned that there is a lawless element in Trigg county. We are gratified to note that it regards threatened murder and train wrecking as a "mistake" because it "will not do the association any good." And we congratulate the Record on its influence in Trigg county. Its teachings have borne fruit. Its chickens have come home to roost.

INJUNCTION.

To Prevent Delivery to Another of Tobacco Pledged Association.

Henderson, Ky., Jan. 24.—Circuit Judge Hanson granted a permanent injunction restraining Nick Ashby from selling his tobacco and ordering him to deliver the entire crop to the Stemming District Tobacco Association. Ashby had a contract with the association, but threatened to break it. Suit was filed and an injunction secured while Ashby was on the road to the city with one load of tobacco, which he finally delivered to an association warehouse. The equity people claim a great victory in the decision.

SUCCEEDS SHONTS.

Change in the Management Of Canal Construction.

Washington, Jan. 24.—Announcement was made at the War Department this morning that the office of chairman and chief engineer of the Isthmian Canal Commission would be combined, and that Mr. Strud, the present chief engineer, would be given the appointment, the understanding being that he will maintain a residence on the isthmus. The resignation of Chairman Shonts, who will be President of the Interborough Rapid Transit Company, it also was stated, will be accompanied by his resignation as President of the Panama Railroad Company, to take effect on the same date that he will sever his connection with the Isthmian Canal Commission.

EXAMINATION

Of Colored Teachers Began Yesterday.

An examination of applicants to teach in the colored schools in the county was begun in the circuit court room yesterday morning. The examinations will close today. The board of examiners consists of County Superintendent W. E. Gray, Prof. C. E. Dudley, superintendent of the Pembroke public schools, and Miss Myrtle Myers, of Crofton. There will be 25 or 30 persons examined to obtain diplomas.

JAMESTOWN COMMITTEE.

Col. M. H. Crump, Of Bowling Green, Here Last Night.

AT HOTEL LATHAM.

A Virginian Himself, His Enthusiasm Is Boundless, For The Exposition.

Col. M. H. Crump, of Bowling Green, was in the city yesterday in the interest of the Jamestown Exposition Fund and a meeting was held at Hotel Latham last night at which Col. Crump met a number of ladies and gentlemen interested in the proper representation of Kentucky and Christian county at the Jamestown Exposition. One of the four block houses in the fort will be built of Christian county logs. Other counties similarly honored will be Warren, Pike and Breathitt.

Col. Crump says the ladies of the various cities are showing great enthusiasm in the movement and he thinks they should be put in the lead.

The raising of the small amount of $541 in this county ought to be an easy matter.

If the ladies take hold of it, there will be no trouble about it.

IMPORTANT NOTICE.

To Members Of Trigg County Tobacco Association.

I wish to state that I do not at all endorse the sentiment of the notes that were placed under the door of the Cadiz depot Tuesday night warning Mr. White not to permit the tobacco of Mr. J. M. Vinson to be carried over his railroad. Under the agreement we signed some time ago with the Independent Organization, of which Mr. Vinson was a member, they were to have the privilege of selling and delivering their 1906 crop outside of the Association, but pledged their 1907 crop. This agreement was made in good faith upon our part, and I trust no member of the Association will attempt to interfere in any way with the provisions of this agreement being carried out. E. E. Wash, Chm. Trigg Co. Association.

Two Items of Importance To Sunday School Workers.

The ships are rapidly filling up for the World's Sunday School Convention in Rome, Italy, May 20-23 next. So far only a few have booked from Kentucky. We ought to have 100. If you are at all interested or willing to be made interested, write at once for explanatory matter.

The fifth session of the now famous Pastors' Sunday School Institute meets in Louisville, February 18-22. Some of the finest talent in America has been engaged. Those who have attended the former sessions know how high grade it is, others can form no conception of it.

SIX WENT IN HIS BACK.

Has But Slight Chances Of Recovery.

John Bell, the negro who was shot Monday morning while taking coal from the American Snuff Co., was much worse hurt than reported by the colored doctors in charge of the case. Dr. R. L. Woodard was called into the case the next day and he found that the wounds in Bell's back are probably fatal. Six buckshot entered his back, one of them passing through a kidney. The others have not been located. Five other shots went through the walls of his stomach, besides the two that shattered the bone in his left wrist.

Bell showed a little improvement yesterday. The chance of life depends on whether or not the intestines were punctured.

Bell says that he had been working as a section hand and that the coal he was appropriating belonged to the rail road. He admits that he

DEAD MEN'S BONES

TELL OF PREHISTORIC RACE IN BRITISH ISLES.

Discovery of Scientists Which, Is of Great Interest and Importance to the Anthropologist.

Dead men, they say, tell no tales, but dead men's bones leave records behind them which the anthropologist is eager to study in the search for the history of prehistoric man, and the discovery of the north coast of Cornwall, England, of an ancient burying ground has opened up new fields of activity. As is so often the case in such discoveries, it came entirely by chance, and it was only after many dry bones and skeletons had been unearthed by workmen engaged in excavating for a building, that scientists got scent of this to them—rich find and began active operations.

It was as long ago as August, 1900, that a gentleman named Mallett, drawn to the spot by the quiet beauty of Hartly bay, purchased some three acres of land and started with the erection of a dwelling house. As the work of excavation proceeded and a slate slab or tomb was encountered at a depth of about 15 feet, and therein were found bones and characteristic ornaments and implements of a very early stage of civilization.

Looking Into One of the Slate-Lined Cists.

Mr. Mallett, appreciating at once the importance of the find, communicated at once with various antiquarian societies. Finally funds were raised for carrying out systematic excavations under the direction of the Royal Society of Cornwall, and now it is possible to tell the complete story of the research and the valuable relics discovered, as the result of which the Hartly Bay museum was founded by Mr. Mallett for their accommodation. About a large number of them were removed to the Truro museum.

But the discovery of new cists continue to be made. The Scientific American is authority for the statement that only a few weeks ago the present proprietor of the place, Col. Sellers, discovered further relics, besides finding a number of ancient slate implements and other relics.

The burial ground has the appearance and there a number of glass-covered cases. It is through these that one can inspect the cists, these that one can inspect the cists or tombs with the skeletons in them. There are some six in all, some containing only one skeleton, and others two and more. They are in a sitting posture, with the knees pulled up or down. In every instance, the bones are in straight lines, one head to another, all running toward the north or south. There were many lines of graves side by side, about three feet apart. Beneath these were other rows of graves. In every instance, too, the graves were lined with great slate slabs, it is not without interest to note that in one grave the skeletons are flattened. They must have been flattened before they were placed there. That is an indisputable fact. It is supposed by many that this is a proof that the people of those days indulged in human sacrifice. After the feast or religious rite, the remains, or rather the bones, of the sacrificed one were purposely flattened by some heavy instrument and then interred.

Then in another grave the skull is broken in several places, and the nasal bone severed by a clean cut across the front. There are three such one of position, projecting through the side of the left margin of the lower jaw, beneath the normal row of teeth. This is supposed to show that these people were in the habit of hastening the end of a dying person by killing him either in the grave or on the naked rocks by breaking his head with a stone.

As to the age of these prehistoric remains, there would seem to be no doubt that they belong to the neolithic period, and anthropologists are virtually agreed that the skeletons recently found must have been buried 2,500 years ago. It may even be earlier still. One popular writer has stated that the cemetery must have been founded at the time of King Solomon; but this is mere conjecture.

Matter of Taste. The missionary bishop was dedicating a new school house in Runt-ti-fo.

"I advise you," he said in conclusion, "to study hard here. For, after all, my children, the brain is the best part of man."

"Rubbish!" shouted a reformed cannibal in the rear of the hall. "Not! Nothing of the kind!"

A DESERT RAILROAD

IRON HIGHWAY THREADING ITS WAY TOWARDS MECCA.

Mohammedans Adopt Modern Facilities for Making the Way to the Mohammedan Holy City Easy for Pilgrims.

By the year 1913 the Arabian desert will be traversed by a railroad and pilgrims to the Mohammedan holy city of Mecca will no longer suffer the long, tedious, and perilous journey across the hot sands to reach the goal of their religious devotion. Five years ago the faithful of Islam conceived the plan of building a railroad from Damascus southward, and today it has been pushed forward into the desert until at the present time it has almost reached Medina, 350 miles to the south of Damascus, more than half way to their religious devotion. The plan of building a railroad from Damascus southward, and today it has been pushed forward into the desert until at the present time it has almost reached Medina, 350 miles to the south of Damascus, more than half way to their religious devotion. The plan of building a railroad from Damascus southward, and today it has been pushed forward into the desert until at the present time it has almost reached Medina, 350 miles to the south of Damascus, more than half way to their religious devotion.

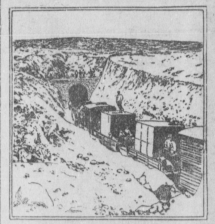

The line stands in a class by itself, for there is no enterprise like it. Its inception and progress are due to no political, strategic or commercial considerations. A religious necessity impelled Sultan Abdul Hamid II, the ruler of Turkey and the head of the Mohammedan faith, to build the road. He called upon Mohammedans all over the world in 1901 to contribute the funds required as a religious duty. They have responded tirelessly, funds are continually pouring into the treasury and the cost of the enterprise, as it advances week by week, is defrayed by these free will offerings.

Every Mohammedan who is rich enough to make the costly journey believes it is his religious duty to go on a pilgrimage to Mecca, the prophet's birthplace, at least once in his life. About 100,000 of these pilgrims coming from all parts of the Mohammedan world, meet every year to worship at the Ka'aba and win the special blessing of Heaven.

Many caravans of Arabian pilgrims take the sandy routes across Arabia to Mecca. Many Persians also cross the Arabian desert, but most of them take the sea route to Jeddah, on the Red sea, and then the caravan road to Mecca. From 30,000 to 60,000 pilgrims a year, coming from Egypt, North Africa, India, and as well as Turkey, Asia Minor and south Russia, reach Mecca by way of Jeddah.

It is the Syrian pilgrims, about 6,000 annually, who travel the wearisome pilgrim road from Damascus through Medina and Mecca. For the poorest travelers the journey costs at least $250, and none but the comparatively well to do can afford this expense.

The route is especially famous because it is the road followed by the caravan of the Sultan of Turkey, who sends costly presents to the sheriff of Mecca and the Bedouin sheiks, carried all the way between a battalion of infantry and a battery of field artillery.

The pilgrim railroad, though only one-third completed, is already attracting many thousands of devotees from lands which have hitherto used other routes. The day will soon come when all the pilgrims from European Turkey will travel by rail between Constantinople and Mecca. The railroad from Damascus north through Aleppo is nearly completed to the railroad which the Germans are building between Constantinople and the Persian gulf. When this German road is completed Persian and Indian pilgrims may also travel all the way by rail from the Persian gulf to the pilgrim railroad and thence south to Mecca. The pilgrim railroad is expected ultimately to carry about half the pilgrims who visit the holy cities.

Up to September 1, 1905, the total amount of contributions from Mohammedans toward the building of this railroad amounted to $2,340,000. To the steady increasing of contributions the profits of working the phosphate and sulphur beds along the line add an important amount to the construction fund.

All food and railroad material must be brought from afar, and as the line progresses southward the cost of the material required increases. It was decided awhile ago that the transportation of the great quantity of railroad material over the French railway between Beirut and Damascus had become too costly.

A part of the railroad fund was therefore diverted to building a branch line from the port of Haifa to the pilgrim railroad about 60 miles south of Damascus. This branch is now in operation, carrying material to the main line. It is expected hereafter to bring many thousands of pilgrims from Mediterranean lands to Haifa and over the branch line to the pilgrim railroad.

NIGHTS OF UNREST.

No Sleep, No Rest, No Peace for the from Kidney Trouble.

No peace for the kidney sufferer—Pain and distress from morning to night.

Get up with a lame back; Twinges of backache bother you all day.

Dull aching breaks your rest at night.

Urinary disorders add to your misery.

Get at the cause—cure the kidneys. Doan's Kidney Pills will work the cure.

They're for the kidneys only—Have made great cures in Hopkinsville.

Wm. C. Davis, cooper, of No. 603 North Main street, says: "A dull bearing down pain across my kidneys and through the small of my back made it so painful for me to stoop or lift anything that I was unable to do any work or to have any pleasure. Whenever I took cold it settled in my back and at night bothered me a great deal while lying in bed."

Sharp twinges often kept me awake for hours and in the morning I arose feeling tired and devoid of all energy and ambition. The condition of the kidneys was especially annoying and distressing at night. I doctored and used many remedies until I became discouraged, for instead of getting better I seemed to grow worse. Finally I happened to read an advertisement of Doan's Kidney Pills, and as they were highly recommended by people nearby, I could not help but believe that they were a good remedy. I got a box and after using them a few days I could see a decided improvement. I kept on with the treatment and the pains in my back left me entirely and the action of the kidneys was restored to a normal and healthy condition."

AMERICAN CAVALRY WOMAN LABORITE

DESERVING OF MORE APPRECIATION THAN IT RECEIVES.

Efficient Branch of the Military Forces of the Country Which is Performing Real Heroism to the Nation.

PROMINENT ENGLISH LEADER TO VISIT UNITED STATES.

Miss Mary R. Macarthur Manages Strikes and Holds Sway Over 135,000 Women Workers of British Isles.

The American cavalry is the finest body of men with the best trained horses on the face of the globe, and yet the American citizen little understands or realizes it. The natural genius of Americans for the saddle and the unlimited opportunity for riding, combined under the intelligent direction of the army regulation, have produced results in which every American should take pride.

Since the earliest days the riding of the American soldier has been notable. The work of the cavalry on both sides of the civil war was in many respects unprecedented and has been studied by European experts with the closest attention. The Spanish war has produced other famous examples. The credit for being the best riders in the world has long been given to the Cossacks. Since the late war between Russia and

Following a Rough Trail.

Japan, however, the ideal has been rudely shattered. For certain feats of trick riding, again, the Italian cavalry has been very highly praised. It is safe to say, however, that as regards endurance, fancy riding and general efficiency, our American troopers are easily the equal of and in all probability superior to any cavalry in the world.

Such results are in no sense accidental. In the first place, the material at the disposal of the officers is exceptionally fit. The American soldier seems to take naturally to the saddle. He is, in the phrase, a natural born rider, nor is he lacking in daring and endurance. Then again, the troops have the advantage of great stretches of country for riding which test their skill and endurance. The cavalry boys of the west—and there are many of them—are doubtless the finest training schools for riders in the world. Here are no tan bark rings or restricted parade grounds, but unlimited prairie, mountain and desert, presenting every condition a soldier may be called upon to face in actual warfare. An might be expected, therefore, recruits are soon licked into excellent shape.

The regular cavalry drill of the army is very exacting. The recruits are taught at the beginning every detail of their work. In many long and arduous hours they are taught how to mount, how to saddle and harness their horses, how to care for their mounts under all conditions, and finally, when all these details have been mastered, to go through the various drills on horseback. And at regular intervals the troops are sent out on long practice marches to harden and accustom the men to face every possible situation. These practice marches often cover several hundred miles of rough country. The provisions for the trip are carried along, the troops, of course, living in the open. At times the men are rushed along on forced marches covering 50 miles or more in a day. In the end they will return from such an experience as hard as nails and with an invaluable experience.

At many of the western posts the troops have the opportunity to indulge in a variety of rough riding or fancy riding, which is at once exceedingly picturesque and practical. The reputation of the Cossack, for instance, is largely due to the spectacular feats of a few picked men in the circus and similar exhibitions. Those who have traveled among the army posts of the west know that the American troops discount those feats.

Why He Wanted a Lover.

Fred Prince has had a long experience in making letters to passengers and has become familiar with all possible excuses to avoid the second story.

"Give me a lower," is the usual request and thereupon the passenger uses some expressive simile to show his opinion of the "sky chamber."

A hardened old man came in one day on the way east and wanted a berth. All the lower ones had been allotted.

"Come, put me in the aisle," said the disgusted treasure seeker. "Do you think I am a cliff dweller?"—San Francisco Chronicle.

Quaint and Pathetic.

The late Lady Curzon brought back from India a number of quaint "Baba" letters, peculiarly pathetic, though grotesquely expressed. One read: "Dear and Fair Madame—I have much pleasure to inform you that my dearest and my wife's treatment, she having left this world for the other on the night of the 27th ultimo. For your help in this matter I shall ever feel grateful. Yours truly, Mrs. Curzon."

With the Country Editor.

An alderman pays a reporter five dollars to write him a speech favoring the erection of a new schoolhouse, but after delivering 12 cents worth of the speech he is told that there is no question before the house and asked to sit down. In doing so he breaks a pair of suspenders worth 25 cents. How much is the great man out of pocket, and would the schoolhouse have been built if the whole of his speech had been delivered?

WHY NOT PUMPKIN PIE?

Gelger, of the Chubbuck (Ind.) Truth, says "Wood, pumpkins and Jackasses taken on subscription at this office." That's the limit. He might have used for the Jackasses to haul in the wood as not many of the subscribers can find time to do it, but what would he do with the pumpkins?

A POPULAR TEACHER.

One of the rural schools in Kansas has a pretty girl as its teacher, but she was much troubled at first because many of her pupils were late every morning. At last she made the announcement that she would kiss the first pupil to arrive at the schoolhouse the next morning. At sunrise the three largest boys of her class were sitting on the doorstep of the schoolhouse, and by six o'clock every boy in the school, and four of the directors were waiting for her to arrive.

TROUBLE.

Between Japanese and Chinese Laundryman.

Ben Hemdad, a dapper little Japanese, who came from St. Louis or Louisville last Tuesday and stopped with Louis Chan, of the local laundrymen, has spent a few days in jail. The Chinamen, we are informed, missed a lady's small gold watch. Ben Hemdad had gone to the L. & N. afternoon train. The Chinamen also said that he had entertained his Japanese friend during the two days he was in the city and he was so well satisfied that his guest had taken his watch that he went to the train and started back to the police headquarters with him. After getting as far as the ladies' entrance to Hotel Latham an officer, who had been called by 'phone met them and took the prisoner off his hands. When the officer came up the Chinamen handed over the watch, which the Japanese had given him when the officer got near them. The case was investigated by City Judge Brasher, who turned it over to County Judge Breathitt. The Japanese was put in jail pending his examination. The police say that the Japanese is a nice looking, well dressed fellow, and that he says he has a laundry in Louisville or St. Louis. He was tried yesterday and released.

Hungarian Orchestra.

As a director and soloist Samuel Schildkret is without a peer in the opinion of Hopkinsville people. For two solid hours music lovers were entertained at the Tabernacle Wednesday night. Schildkret is a musical genius. His flute and piccolo solos carried his hearers by storm, every rendition calling forth encore after encore. Everybody was delighted with every number rendered. The gems from opera to the catchy rag-time, mingled with old time melodies, with the production of favorite war songs, were all given in a way that touched the emotional that exists in every soul and Schildkret knows just how to find the dominant chord in every heart. His orchestra are all master of their instruments, and their leader brings out the best that is in each of them. The leading violinist is among the best.

HOG CHOLERA

The Problem of a Cure is Now Solved.

Dr. J. H. Snoddy, of Alton, Ill. has discovered a positive cure and preventative for this terrible disease. He has had it in use for ten years and has saved millions of dollars' worth of cholera hogs for the public. The directions for its use are simple and easy to follow. Any practical farmer can stop the worst outbreak of cholera that ever came and save every hog that is able to take the treatment.

This treatment is not an expense to a farmer, because it clears his herd of every character of worm and parasite and puts them in such a thrifty condition that the extra gain they will make from the effect of this treatment will return the farmer $5 in this extra gain for every dollar's worth of the remedy used properly and right.

It is the greatest worm remedy known to medical science. It pays a farmer to keep his hogs clear of worms with it. When the hog is clear of worms and in good thrifty condition it is rather a hard matter to infect him with cholera without directly exposing him to the germ.

It pays to use the medicine whether there is any cholera around or not.

This wonderful remedy is manufactured by the Dr. J. H. Snoddy Remedy Co., Alton, Ill., and is for sale by Planters Hardware Co., incorporated, of Hopkinsville, and E. W. Stegar & Dixon, at Masonville, Ky. Anyone calling on either of these firms can get Dr. Snoddy's free book on hog cholera, free of charge. Every farmer should have one.
